

“Last Competitor Standing” or “Annies”.

Annies are where 3 shooters mount their guns, the first calls for the bird and shoots. If she/he hits, no one else can shoot and she/he is safe. If the first shooter misses, the second shooter shoots. If she/he hits, that knocks the 1st shooter out. If she/he misses, the third shooter shoots. If she/he hits, he knocks the 1st two out. If all three miss, all are safe. If the 1st shooter shoots and misses, the second shooter breaks and the 3rd shooter shoots, shooter 1 and 3 are out. For the next round, the second shooter shoots first at the next target, with the 3rd and 4th backing on that target...and so on. Remember, if any person shoots and breaks, and the shooter after him shoots, the shooter who shot at the dead target is out. If a shooter fires at an already broken target or shoots out of turn, then that shall be deemed lost and that shooter will be knocked out. Any shooter who purposely waits to shoot in order to make it more difficult for the next shooter their target shall be deemed lost and that shooter will be knocked out.
