

PRESENTS

2014 SCTP & SPP NATIONAL TEAM CHAMPIONSHIPS

WORLD SHOOTING & RECREATIONAL COMPLEX • SPARTA, IL

DIRECTOR'S LETTER

Greetings to all state advisors, coaches, parents, athletes and supporters!

On behalf of the Scholastic Shooting Sports Foundation staff and Board of Directors, I am pleased to welcome everyone to the 2014 SSSF National Championships. We are excited to announce our long-term commitment with the World Shooting and Recreational Complex to host our National Championships through 2020 and to continue our great tradition in Sparta!

Because of the hard work and dedication of our volunteers, the Scholastic Clay Target Program (SCTP) and Scholastic Pistol Program (SPP) have continued their exponential growth in 2014. As of press time for this program, the SCTP is on track to have over 12,000 athletes nationwide, and the SPP is on pace to exceed 1,000 athletes in only its second full year.

Our thanks go out to the many generous sponsors listed in this program, with a very special “thank you” to Larry and Brenda Potterfield, whose vision and generosity are helping sustain the future of youth shooting sports. Please stop by to thank Larry and Brenda at the Main Event Building on July 17th during our scheduled meet-and-greet. As you see our other sponsors throughout the event, be sure to thank them as well for their generosity and participation in our National Championships.

The future for the SSSF continues to bring growth and several changes to better support our volunteers. In 2014, we will be adding several Regional Field Representatives (RFRs), who will bring front-line support to coaches and state advisors. In September, the SSSF will be relocating our national office to the National Shooting Complex in San Antonio as our new hub for all central functions. In the fall, we will have the nationwide launch of our new data system, SHOT V5, with additional features, including many exciting ways to provide virtual competition at the local, state, and regional level. Dan Hathaway is our new Director of Foundation Development and is paving the way for others to give and provide support for the future of SSSF teams. Be sure to check out all of the exciting work Dan is doing in this program and consider helping out.

Lastly, be sure to stop out at the west pistol bay to try out the demonstration rifle stage. All competitors and coaches are welcome to shoot the stage and be eligible to win one of four Ruger 10/22 rifles.

We hope you enjoy your time at our National Championships. Best of luck to all competitors. Be safe and have fun!

Regards,

Ben Berka

Caledon Shotguns

For Kids

magazine does to help promote shooting for the future. About six months ago I gave me a pair of FAUSTI Caledon Over and Under (O/U) shotguns to try out: a 12-gauge and a Youth Model 20-gauge. I have since shot both many times and have really enjoyed doing so. The standard 12-gauge model features a 14-1/2" length of pull, automatic ejectors, metallic boost, and a single selectable trigger. The highest quality Turkish walnut is meticulously shaped, oiled, and hand-polished to perfection. All models are offered in a 30", 28", or 26" barrel. The 12-gauge model weighs 7.25 pounds, while the 20-gauge weighs a modest 6.3 pounds. The Caledon performs well on sporting clays courses and carries well in the field. Many classic and timeless qualities make the Caledon unique among others in the field. The Youth Caledon has a barrel length of 26", a 12-1/2" length of pull and weighs only

In the fall, I used both shotguns for hunting a variety of harsh and very steep. The birds like it where they think they are safe from hunters, which is many miles away from easy access. I used the 12-gauge and absolutely loved it! It was great for the difficult terrain. When you hike all day long and use all your energy to get to where you want to be (which is on top of the birds), you want your gun to perform flawlessly. The FAUSTI passed with flying colors.

Ease of assembly: The two FAUSTIs were a snap to put together and came apart easily. Both had a very tight action. A tight action is important if you want your gun to last a long time, which these guns will.

How it felt in my hands: The guns felt great in my hands, and I really enjoyed shooting them both. The 12-gauge fit me perfectly and shot right where I wanted it to. It was really smooth to shoot and easy to swing at a moving bird or a target. The barrel was just long enough that you wouldn't miss something by jumping over it but short enough that it could be swung quickly and effectively to get a fast-moving object. The weight was very minimal but still there. It was nice to carry around all day because when you finally got a shot, you wouldn't be too tired to make it count. The 20-gauge was also fun to shoot. It was a little short for me but made up for that disadvantage in other ways. It was lightweight and easy to shoot fast-moving birds because of this. I had a blast shooting both guns, and both felt great.

This could be your article!

Sights: Each gun had a large brass bead at the end of its top barrel which was great. You could see birds and targets with great ease. The field of vision was enough that you could see where you were shooting and the target at the same time. I would not change the sight picture at all.

Recoil: The recoil was noticeable but manageable. Both light-target loads and heavy-game loads were fine to shoot through the gun, and with the interchangeable choke tubes, you could adjust the pattern of the gun if you wanted to.

Safety: The guns had a safety on the top of the receiver. It was a mechanical safety so you have to turn it off every time you close the gun. This is great for bird hunting, which are what these guns are really made for, but not so much for shooting clay targets. The safety was easy to get to and turn off when it was time to shoot.

These guns were great, and I would not change anything on either of them. They were awesome in every aspect, and I had a blast trying them out!

Thanks again, Junior Shooters, for allowing me to write this article for you.

CAPTIONS

1. FAUSTI's Caledon shotguns have tight actions and are available in a Youth Model (top shotgun) as well as adult sized.

6. The bottom of the receiver and trigger guard are exquisitely engraved.
